

Join the Mall of Rosebank & Jacana Media for cocktails on Thursday 1st September at Exclusive Books to launch the much anticipated 1st book by McIntosh Polela 'My Father, My Monster', a triumph of the human spirit.

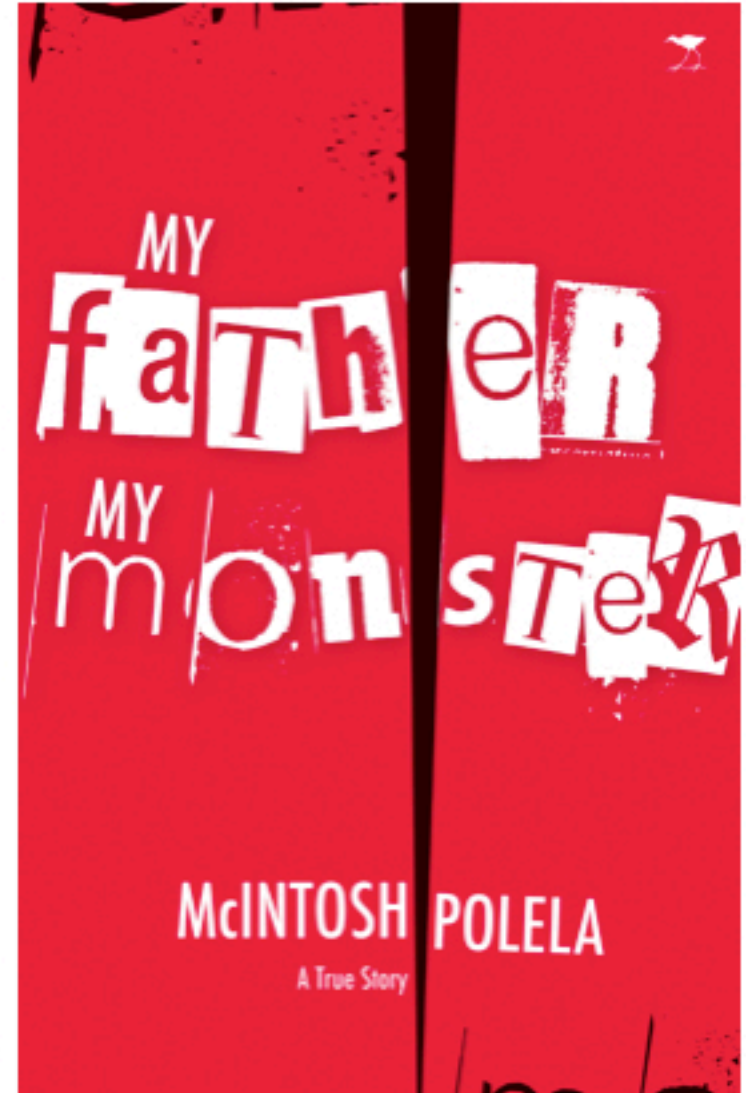

Polela will hold a panel discussion with guest speaker, presenter on SABC Katie Mohamed, as well as a book signing and news clips of TV footage of Polela will be screened.

Former TV journalist and now Hawks spokesperson McIntosh Polela has been on the television screens for many years. Bright, articulate and charismatic, his career looks dazzling. But behind McIntosh's smile, a troubled past haunts him. Both his parents disappeared when he was just a little boy, leaving him and his sister Zinhle to suffer years of brutal abuse. What would have happened to McIntosh, if a compassionate nun hadn't taken him under her wing?

Eventually, the truth of his parents' disappearance is revealed. His own father is the reason for all his troubles. McIntosh is thrown completely of course. He keeps a brightly polished gun, for the day he meets his father. Not even his intense scholarship doing a Masters Degree at the London School of Economics later in his life, can fill his emptiness.
